

MHRB: meeting the behavioral health needs of our community.

Our Vision

The Mental Health & Recovery Board of Clark, Greene and Madison Counties supports a system for delivering mental health, alcohol and other drug treatment, prevention, education and advocacy services for its residents.

Our Mission

The Mental Health & Recovery Board of Clark, Greene and Madison Counties assures access to quality behavioral health services so residents have opportunities to lead healthy, productive lives.

MHRB Core Beliefs

- Mental illness and addiction are illnesses that touch everyone they contact.
- Treatment works. Recovery is possible and life saving.
- People are best served when they participate actively in planning for their treatment and recovery.

Greene County

Help for Today. Hope for Tomorrow.

Serious mental health or substance abuse problems can destroy dreams and lives. For more than 30 years, the Mental Health & Recovery Board (MHRB) of Greene County has provided a critical leadership role in the development, management and coordination of behavioral health initiatives designed to improve the availability and effectiveness of treatment and prevention services in Greene County.

MHRB works closely with a dedicated, professional and compassionate team of caregivers in nine agencies to serve the behavioral health needs of all ages—children, adults and senior citizens in Greene County—regardless of income.

The MHRB takes the lead in assuring that Greene County citizens have the mental health and drug/alcohol recovery services they need. But there is much more! MHRB also provides funding for counseling, treatment and education programs for a wide range of related issues, including: domestic violence, child abuse, support for wounded military members, suicide prevention programs, sexual assault, employment support and the isolation and depression of older adults to name just a few.

With continued strong community support, the measure of care MHRB and its partner agencies provide our most at-risk citizens, will remain very high. The result...the MHRB will continue to pursue and fulfill our vision of assuring access to quality behavioral health services for residents of Greene County.

“ I got addicted to narcotics after back surgery. I pushed everyone away, friends and family both. I found recovery at TCN Behavioral Health Services. I’ve reunited with my family and even written my congressman about how effective treatment is.”

— A single mom in Xenia

“ I had a nervous breakdown in 2002. For 7 years I had severe panic attacks every other day. I’ve learned that change doesn’t come all at once. I now have a part-time job and the ability to even speak in public without a panic attack.”

— A man from Jamestown

“ I drank and used drugs until I lost everything. Local resources held me together when I went for help. Now I have a GED and a scholarship at Wright State University. My wife and my 4-year-old daughter and I are all together again.”

— Former high school drop-out from Fairborn

MHRB Overview

The MHRB serves Greene, Clark and Madison Counties. It is one of more than 50 mental health and recovery boards in Ohio created in 1988, by state law, to plan and fund a local system of mental health care, emphasizing local control and community care. Boards use local, state and federal funding to contract with agencies, who directly provide services to consumers. The act also called for mental health consumers and their family members to serve on Boards, giving them a more powerful voice in decisions affecting our community's local system of care.

The History of MHRB

In 1988, the Ohio legislature passed the Mental Health Act assigning responsibility for planning and funding a local system of mental health care to local boards. In 1989, the legislature created the Department of Alcohol and Drug Addiction Services (ODADAS), adding alcohol and drug addiction prevention, treatment and support services to the operations of local Boards.

In 1995, the Greene County Board and the Clark County Board merged. In 1997, Madison County joined the Clark and Greene County Board to become the Mental Health & Recovery Board (MHRB) of Clark, Greene and Madison Counties. MHRB is directly responsible for providing a system of care that meets local needs of all three counties.

Funding for MHRB Services

MHRB funding comes from local, state, and federal sources in addition to various grants. The MHRB then provides funds to partner agencies and governmental organizations in Greene County to deliver behavioral health treatment and prevention services. A large majority of the available MHRB county funding is generated through a local levy. Without these locally generated dollars, MHRB would not be able to provide the services Greene County residents need and rely on.

100%

of Greene County MHRB levy funds are expended to serve only Greene County residents

Local county funding has become critical as community-based services have replaced state institutions, state funding has been dramatically reduced and the demand for services has soared. Without local community levy support, the Greene County safety net would disappear with many people no longer able to get the help they need. Ongoing local support preserves crisis, counseling and medication services for our most vulnerable youth, adults and seniors.
